Trade Electronically with Rite Aid Corporation

Rite Aid requires that all domestic and international suppliers support the electronic exchange of transactions in accordance with standard and specifications as noted in the Rite Aid Supplier Compliance Guide.

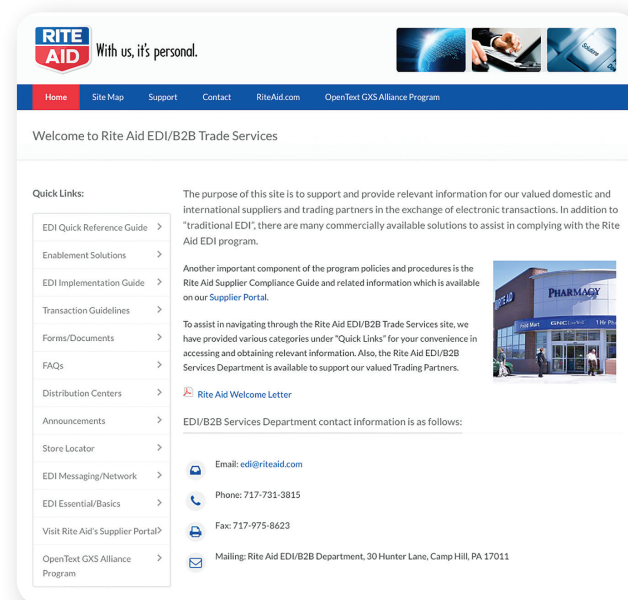

Rite Aid policies are covered in the Supplier Compliance Guide and The Supply Policy Agreement for Generic Pharmaceutical Vendors. The policies specify that all suppliers accepting distribution center (DC) purchase orders are required, at minimum, to support the electronic exchange of purchase orders, advance ship notices and invoice transactions in accordance with EDI policy and procedures.

Direct-store-delivery (DSD) suppliers are required to support the EDI invoice and in certain instances, EDI purchase orders and advance ship notices.

Rite Aid E-commerce Online Store drop ship suppliers are required to support a number of transactions as specified under Transaction Guidelines and in accordance with the Rite Aid Online Store Master Agreement. Suppliers are expected to support our designated drop ship solution provider for testing and on-boarding and be in compliance with all requirements.

Rite Aid Procure-to-Pay (P2P) trading partners are expected to support our designated solution provider of GEP and be in compliance with all requirements.

Rite Aid EDI/B2B Trade Services

The purpose of this site is to support and provide relevant information for our valued domestic and international suppliers and trading partners in the exchange of electronic transactions. In addition to 'traditional EDI', Rite Aid supports many commercially available solutions to assist in supporting the Rite Aid EDI program. Another important component of the program policies and procedures is the Rite Aid Supplier Compliance Guide which is available on the Rite Aid Supplier Portal.

To assist in navigating through the Rite Aid EDI/B2B Trade Services site, we have provided various categories under 'Quick Links' for your convenience in accessing and obtaining relevant information. Also, the EDI Services Department is available to support our trading partners.
